Official Incendiary Bomb Instructions

AIR RAIDS ! ! !

Any attempt at invasion spells "Air Raids", and we have learned from England that a single plane can strew incendiary bombs over a large area within a very few seconds. If one should land on your home you must know what to do.

CONFLAGRATIONS ! ! !

War and sabotage go hand in hand and fires originating from this source may tax the reserves of your fire department. While your fire fighters are engaged in the task of suppressing major conflagrations, you may be forced to extinguish a small fire in your own home.

PRIORITIES ! ! !

It is extremely important that you make every effort to safeguard your home from fire not only because fire protection facilities may be limited in times of emergency, but because it is becoming increasingly difficult to replace many household appliances and materials for home construction.

THE MAGNESIUM BOMB ! ! !

The bomb weighs approximately two and one-fifth pounds, is 2 inches in diamater and 9 inches long. It has a tailpiece 5 inches long and is, therefore, roughly, 14 inches over all.

Contained in the core of the bomb is an igniting mixture which fires upon impact with some solid object. The resultant heat generated is sufficient to ignite the magnesium body of the bomb, which will burn quietly for from 10 to 20 minutes.

This type of bomb does not explode. Ignition occurs on impact and the violent phase of its action continues for approximately a minute. When this action subsides, the bomb may be approached at reasonably close range to extinguish with the proper equipment.

The maximum velocity of this bomb is approximately 350 feet per second. Such velocity will enable the bomb to penetrate ordinary roofs and may go through the ceiling below if it is composed of lath and plaster. Thus a fire is most likely to occur on the roof, in the attic or on the top-most floor.

There are other types of incendiary bombs, but due to the peculiar effectiveness of the magnesium bomb, it is the one most commonly used and therefore the one to be prepared to handle.

PREPARATIONS ! ! !

(1) Be sure that attics or boxed areas on upper floors are readily accessible. If necessary, cut window or door openings and provide stairs or ladders for emergency entry.

(2) Remove all loose rubbish or other inflammable material from attic space and roof. (Such materials are not only a fire hazard, but actually hinder fire fighting efforts.) Attics may be floored and if construction will permit the weight, this floor may be covered with protective materials, such as ashes, plaster material, etc.

(3) Have a means of providing a water spray to the burning bomb. The 44 stirrup pump has been used by the British with considerable success. In lieu of this, a garden hose of sufficient length to reach all parts of the building is recommended. Either of the above should be equipped with a nozzle capable of delivering either a jet or fine spray of water as needed.

(4) Keep the following tools ready for instant use; long handled shovel, a hoe, an axe, a metal container (garbage can), a supply of sand and some means of illumination (flashlight).

EMERGENCY ACTION ! ! !

Your biggest problem should your roof be penetrated by a magnesium bomb is the difficulty of reaching it, particularly if it has lodged in an inaccessible place. The general principle of smothering and cooling are effective. The effective application of a water spray on the burning magnesium bomb will produce several desired results. (1) In contact with the burning metal, the water spray is converted to steam, thereby producing a cooling effect. (2) The time of burning of the bomb may be reduced 10 minutes or more. (3) The floor and surrounding combustible materials are cooled thereby preventing the spread of fire.

In the event water is not available, apply sand on bomb, pick it up with long handled shovel and hoe, place in metal container in which a 4-inch layer of sand covers bottom, put more sand over bomb and carry out of building as soon as possible.

Always check below the point of impact to see that fire has not spread through the floor.

When a bomb is burning inside a house with inflammable material nearby, water spray should be used to speed the burning of the bomb and cool the floor. A jet of water can be used to advantage on surrounding materials.

PRECAUTIONS ! ! !

(1) Never approach a burning magnesium bomb within 50 feet during the first 60 seconds after ignition.

(2) Never apply a solid stream of water from a nozzle directly on the bomb. This will cause an explosion and scatter burning material !

(3) Never expose yourself more than necessary while extinguishing the bomb. Protect yourself by a partially opened door, an overturned table or similar device.

(4) Never allow the fire to get out of control. It is sometimes advisable to neglect extinguishing the bomb to prevent the spread of fire throughout the premises.

(5) Always have an avenue of escape available.

(6) Remember, the saving of your property is not justified by the loss of a life.

State - Socialism

WASHINTON,— New Year business prospectuses of the experts sounded a common note of suspicion that the war effort might drop this country into post-war Socialism.

Time magazine had an outstanding survey of 1941, relating how the government was financing defense plant expansions, operating aluminum and munition plants, how Henry Ford was practically spending his manufacturing resources for the government in anticipation of inheritance taxes, how Chrysler made only 1-25 of 1 percent on its first $32,000,000 of deliveries of defense products. Time's facts inquired politely about the Socialist trend of government acquirement by investment, profit limitation and taxation.

Socialism, of course, is contrary to our democratic war aim. Mr. Roosevelt did not mention the fifth freedom of "free enterprise", but it was implied. Certainly no one here in government, labor or business (except possibly the minor radical fringe) wants anything else. They well know that if we win for freedom on the battlefield and lose it at home, our victory will be thin.

Worse than these economic factors is the undemocratic injustice to the man who wants only to hold his job and provide for his own future. The good worker, who always will be in demand, is penalized by unemployment taxation in favor of the shiftless employe who may not make an effort to hold a job. The latter is the one who will get money in unemployment benefits from the treasury while the hard-working employe may never get back in his lifetime a cent paid into the treasury by himself or his employer for his supposed benefit.—Paul Mallon.

Money King In Jail

Portaley Fort, 60 miles south of Pau, in the French Pyrenees, is the new sunless prison fitted up especially for the King of the Money Lords, Jeroboam Rothschild, alias Georges Mandel. Three former side kicks of the King, all one-time Premier fronts in France are to have sunless rooms in the same prison. They are Leon Blum, Eduard Daladier and Paul Reynaud.

Jeroboam is the 6th of the Rothschild Kings to rule the richest house of money lords in the world. He was king in 1918, when the Versailles Treaty was signed and was at that time a close adviser of Clemenceau. Perhaps he dictated the terms of that deadly treaty, which gave birth to Hitler and the present war. In which case he is responsible for the millions of dead in this war, will be responsible for millions more to die. A sunless prison cell is too good for this monster.

The Rothschild fortune 100 years ago was estimated at 20 billions. The House made perhaps 100 billions out of the last war. Prior to this war, Jeroboam was King of a money fortune estimated at 300 billions, about the total wealth of the United States.

The charge against the prisoners is that they are responsible for the war. Their defense is that former war chief Gamelin, also a prisoner, is responsible. By burying all of them alive in the side of a mountain, hewn from solid rock, it seems that the Petain government means business, and that money will not buy them freedom.

The Founder of the House of Rothschild once said: "Give me control of money and I care not who makes the laws."

The Actor's Prayer

"Oh, God, here in my dressing-room with the door shut, I am alone with Thee! I am glad that I know the great spirit that stands silently by, here, as in every place where a human heart is beating. Cannot an actor be God's man? Cannot I, whose business it is to play, be as conscientious as those in authority or peril or solemn function?

Convention classes me and my fellows among the loose and thoughtless. So Thou art my secret. I triumph inwardly to find Thy presence and taste the mystic joy of Thy friendship, though the world suspects it not. Thou washest my heart as clean as the Priest's. Thou givest me a holy ambition to do my work well, that I may also be a devout craftsman. Thou teachest me subtle ways to resist despair, to master my passions, to heal unworthy weakness. The rare medicine of Thy presence is for me, too, as well as for the cloistered monk or the meditating scholar Teach me to be great among the many who are content to be called great. Reveal to me the satisfaction of virtue, the inner rewards of loyalty, helpfulness and self-control. Let me be an unusual person because of that simplicity of heart and that lovableness of nature that I learn from Thee. May I also touch the infinite and share the divine current that thrills all high souls. Save me from the bogs of pettiness, from egotism, self-pity, envy, and all the corrosives that mar life. I do not serve in the Temple. Mine is no solemn office nor critical station. But I thank Thee that the River of God flows through the streets of the city and whosoever will may drink. Make me to achieve a better success in my role before the ever-present audience of the angels, than I hope to have when I play my part upon the mimic stage. Ever, in all junctures, in hours of lightness as in times of trial—God of my soul—help me to play the Man! Amen!"

—Dr. Frank Crane.

"I See"

He said, "I see." And they said, "He's crazy; crucify him!" He still said, "I see". And they said, "He's an extremist." And they tolerated him. And he continued to say, "I see." And they said, "He's an eccentric." And they rather liked him but smiled at him. And he stubbornly said again, "I see." And they said, "There's something in what he says." And they gave him half an ear. But he said as if he had never said it before, "I see." And at last they were awake and gathered around him and built a temple in his name. And yet he only said, "I see." And they wanted to do something for him. "What can we do to express our regret?" He only smiled. He touched them with the ends of his fingers and kissed them. What could they do for him? "Nothing more than you have done," he answered. And what was that? they wanted to know. "You see," he said, "that's reward enough. You see! You see!"

First Lady Balks at Picket Line

NEW YORK,— Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt refused to cross a picket line and went away without seeing "In Time To Come", a play depicting President Wilson's second administration, the play's producer, Otto. L. Preminger, said.

Finding two pickets from the American federation of musicians (A. F. L.) marching in front of the Mansfield theater, Mrs. Roosevelt, Premiger said, received her money back for three tickets and walked away after remarking..

Preminger said the pickets were protesting because no musicians were employed in the play which uses recordings of the national anthems of the United States, England and France.

"Stand with any man when he is in the right," said Lincoln, "and part with him when he is in the wrong." Again he said: "A man may be loyal to his government and yet oppose the peculiar principles and methods of the administration." Our loyalty is due, not to F. D. R., but to the U. S. A. — H. H. Culver.

Roosevelt's Gastly Budget

The President's message to congress demanding more billions and more production of armament was typically new dealish and FDR. It contained everything extravagant and high sounding but is as practical and practicable as the new deal that brought us lower taxes and security.

Especially was I struck by the absence of the realization that a new A. E. F., of the magnitude depicted in the message, means a huge production of corpses and life long cripples, filled insane asylums and a long line of widows and orphans. You might have been thrilled at the vain glory of conquering the earth end establishing Mr. Rothschild in complete control of the world, I saw the rows upon rows of caskets with the pitiful remnants of what once had been our young men, your neighbors and mine and I saw the agonized faces of those who follow behind the caskets, looking down into the graves of their only son, or their brother . . and that is what these billions upon billions for the glory of the new deal means in terms of real payment.

The debt will never be paid only the interest on the debt so that the owners of the Federal Reserve Bank who invested nothing, except a book entry when they "bought" and will "buy" the billions of bonds will get paid more than the original sum forever and ever as well as re-imburse themselves for something they never paid out when the public buys the bonds with real cash; but the dead and the maimed and the mentally derelict they are the price we must pay and pay it NOW.

Why do our leaders dream dreams of conquest at our expense and never even think of PEACE? Could it not be as easy to conclude peace now on equitable terms before all the rubber trees are chopped down in Malayasia and our young men are chopped down with them, as it will be concluded after the carnage and destruction? Didn't Benjamin Franklin say there never was a just war and there never can be a bad peace. What does Jesus Christ teach about it? Or should HE be rushed to a concentration camp for the sake of the FOUR FREEDOMS?

Boarders Not Wanted

The people of San Diego live right in the midst of a period when the coast of California may be bombed any moment by foreign enemies or be subject to sabotage from within. Precautions are being taken against such incidents both by the military and civil defense organizations. You are invited to join by registering with the Office of Civilian Defense for a number of services where you will be needed in case of emergency.

According to my religion I am opposed to war and the taking of life. But that very fact places an even greater obligation upon me to protect life. In the service of civilian defense there is great need for the people who would even risk their lives in the protection of life for others. It appears to me that the authorities in Washington have overlooked this important factor in the lives of those religious people who now should be encouraged to volunteer their services because they are opposed to taking human lives. This is their opportunity to demonstrate the sincerity of their adherence to principle under the fire of dire necessity.

Whether you are of a religious faith that turns the other cheek or not, now is the time for all who realize what we are up against to come forward and offer to serve in whatever capacity they could do the most and the best to protect lives and property. There are officers in various parts of the city for registration.

Which brings us to a very peculiar incident in the midst of this war. You know that in America the notion prevails that if you don't like something the next impulse is to pass a law against it. As if that would cure the evil. But just the same that is the habit and the notion.

Now in San Diego we have passed laws, city ordinances, against keeping more than two boarders in cretain restricted residence zones of the city. The boarders in question are usually men and women employed in the making of airplanes. Airplanes are the mainstay for defense and offense. How anybody can win a war without airplanes is beyond conception. But the city passed a law against keeping more than two aircraft workers in a house within the restricted zones. And the city has gone to court to enforce compliance with this law. A test case came up in superior court and an injunction was granted against the owner of a boarding house, ordering him to temporarily abandon boarding his 24 aircraft workers till the case is heard in court on its merits. It's a temporary injunction. Note the word temporary. It means that temporarily those men must not eat, must not sleep, must not live in the house they feel at home and prefer to live from all the places available. The fact of the matter is there are not places available where they could get better accomodations. So they must stop eating and sleeping and living near their place of employment till the court changes his mind hoping to hear the case sometime in a few months to come.

While the court decided according to law, what sort of a law is that in these days of actual warfare and hourly imminence of death by bombing and destruction? If the city can correct wartime conditions by passing an ordinance to that effect, why don't our wise city fathers pass a law against Japanese bombers over San Diego and then we would not need to build airplanes, and get ready for blackouts and prepare for civilian defense. How simple it would be. That's exactly how ridiculous this law against boarders is in San Diego. We talk about high morale during this emergency and then we throw the aircraft workers out on their ears and tell them they are not good enough to live with us while they produce the weapons so badly needed now. When the people of Mission Hills are too good to live near a boarding house and put up with the company of the boarders, they ought to think of London and Coventry that might change their perspective about how fortunate they are to be living here and having men and women work in airplane production. In fact they ought to feel privileged to for go some of their comforts just as they feel privileged to invest their savings in defense bonds. That money of theirs goes to those very boarders to enable them to build airplanes, why make it hard on the workers, and on the boarding house owners? The truth is we have not enough boarding houses rather than too many. And when you hear me siding in with the workers during a controversy you will know that they must have a good case, because my reputation as an opponent to labor rackets is quite well established.

I enjoy reading what Westbrook Pegler has to say about racketeering. That means I don't exactly enjoy it, because I would much rather there was no such thing, but since it is with us, at least I take pleasure to see him show them up and cite chapter and verse of their misdeeds in such a way that large masses of people cannot help but know the facts.

Prayers for Peace

It is reported in the news that prayers for peace around the globe were voiced at one of the largest gatherings of the Roman Catholic hierarchy ever to assemble in the west. It took place in Denver when an archdiocese was created there. I am sincerely joining in with such a prayer hoping for an early end of the war. All wars have an end in view and that end is peace. In fact wars are fought with peace in view. The hope of a better condition of living or of protecting our way of living, is what gives endurance to people to bear the burdens of war. It is therefor important that we think of peace, because wars are over, sooner or later, but unless peace is established equitably another war results with all its waste of lives and products. And here again the nation ought to draw upon such men and women who are sincere peace advocates, that their counsel may be made available to draw up peace terms that will promote peace and not another war. People who sincerely hate war and dare incurr public criticism because of such stand, are the people who will get at the root of war and be willing, eager and ready to find and enact the the proper remedy. We must not lay too much emphasis upon war without remembering the peace that the war is being fought for. The peace is the goal, let us prepare for it wisely.

Received a surprise this week. The Library of Congress and the Harvard College Library, both are asking me to forward to them copies of my paper for their file. So we are going up in the world and will some day go places, too.

During the Christmas school vacation-time my two boys were glad to take part in the radio programs; the last one was a family affair with mother and the boys doing the honors while I had to attend Air-Raid-Warden-School. Now vacation is over, they are back in school and have too much to do of their own so that I carry on these programs alone. Of course, they put on a better show since they are native born while my accent is strong, but, then, it is not always a matter of how one says things but more important, what he says and that counts; that's why I am back on the air.

Periods of warfare are always leaving their imprint upon a nation. It is quite important that we do not lose our good human traits. During the pressure of painful events it is so easy to become unbalanced. It's like a policeman on duty. We must keep a cool head and not let sentiment run away with reason. The world is still the same even though we have a declaration of war on the statute books. The laws of nature have not been suspended even though some of our liberties, like the right to habeas corpus, is suspended at the discretion of the commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

In San Diego a group of outstanding lawyers have formed a committee for the protection of civil rights during the war. I was surprised to read the names of those who volunteered. They are among the most outstanding members of the local bar. That is one thing we must guard during this war. While it is a total war, still we do not want America to go totalitarian but want to see the Republic preserved with its ancient rights and privileges and that it may emerge victorious and stronger than ever when peace is declared. To that end we must respect the rights guaranteed by our constitution even in war times. No other country has such an all-inclusive fundamental law as our constitution which covers all exigencies of peace and war times. It's a total coverage and I prefer that sort of totality to any other. All we have to do is follow the constitution and we know we are on the right path. And for that purpose that our local attorneys have banded together to preserve this ancient document and its principles in active force during this emergency.

But the most important thing is what is this war doing to you? Does it destroy your sane outlook upon life, does it make you see dark and if you happen to have been hit hard by the loss of a loved one, does the pain unbalance your mind? It takes fortitude of mind and soul, of body and spirit to stand all the shocks of war and come out a better person. All things in life, good and bad, are experiences which bring out the true metal in us. How do we re-act and can we take it? Whether it be prosperity or want, joy or pain, hope or defeat, how do we stand under it?

During these critical hours let us remember that the same power that governs the movement of the stars and keeps the temperature on the surface of this planet properly airconditioned at a certain standard and never permits it to vary, otherwise we would be roasted and frozen to death, that same Providence continues to guide the destinies of the world. It is necessary that we bear that in mind and recall it from time to time. It is too easy to imagine that after a declaration of war all normal functions of the social and individual life have been changed; but nature does not change, God does not change, it's only our attitude towards them that changes. This attitude is like the sail that can be set to go one way or the other and it is up to us to remember that after all God still rules supreme.

Letter to Gladys

THE RIGHT PERSPECTIVE

Dear Gladys:

You asked me what I expect you to do, enter a convent, be a nun, or become an old maid—you want to live and enjoy your life while you are young.

Please, don't misunderstand me. I am not telling you what to do with yourself and how to live your life. That is your business; but whenever this subject comes up and you assure me that you enjoy discussing it with me and want me to tell you what I know about it, then, upon your definite authority and request to do so, I am telling you in unmistakable terms what I think of it and of you and your way of doing things.

Do you realize this difference between intruding into your privacy and giving you a clear insight into my own mind concerning yourself?

Since you assured me that you want to hear what I think and I believe you should know it, I'll tell you now.

I am not expecting you to enter a convent, though it might have done you good to have entered a convent school of the right kind, rather than be brought up among these smoking, painting undisciplined young females which abound in our public schools of learning how to be useless to themselves and others. As a nun you might corrupt the whole institution and start a revolution, so I would not advise you to take the vows, for it might be your damnation, since the inner meaning of words does not reach far into your consciousness. And you'll never be an old maid, you have too many suiters for that and are too willful a young lady to guage the final consequences of your impetuity, so you will find yourself in the bonds of matrimony when you least expected it.

But the thing that I wished to impress upon you is good judgment. If you cultivate good judgment you will finally find yourself and find your natural place in this universal scheme of life. That is not something which you can find by consulting your astrological charts, or read your palms, or find the numerological aspect of your name and birthday. Good judgment cannot be bought in books, bound and authorized and guaranteed . . . good judgment can be unfolded only by exercising it and obeying the rules.

You may read all the books, attend all the lectures, go to all the schools, read the stars and have every gypsy as your bosom confidant, still you will be useless to yourself and others unles you have learned to prefer the better to the lesser. That's all there is to good judgment. It comes up a million times a day. Nobody else can do it for you, you have to chose morning, noon and night which of two things you are going to do, which one do you want in your life, which one will you accept and which reject. THAT is where you build up yourself and your future, in the stillness of these quiet decisions, these little, trifling decisions, they appear trifles at the time, they may be the most momentous decisions that change the course of your whole life.

Simply learn to put first things first; learn not to sacrifice sacred principles for temporary gain or expediency; learn to discern between the genuine and the imitation; the real and the fleeting that is how you build up not only this body of yours by proper choice of materials and accompany it with right thought, but that is how out of such daily little choices finally the greater mosaic of your life comes into existence.

I hope, my child, you come down to earth and discover the power of life, of building up your life right in your own self. In that inner consciousness where you make these "trifling" decisions day in and day out. There is where the Creator dwells. Here is where the work of building up life and bringing it into manifestation originates. Here is where you may commune with your FATHER and listen to His sweet, small voice, that never intrudes, but bides its time till you will be still and listen to it with preference. THIS preference is the key to your success and failure. I have given you the secret. It is not spectacular. Be humble and obedient to your own better judgment, put better things first, and set them above the lesser things in importance.

By Charles H. Ingersoll
(Of Dollar Watch Fame)

Willkie as defender of Communism, via preventing the deportation of a Communist, is not so far out of (his) line. His campaign was largely devoted to defending rugged Communism vs rugged Individualism. By which blunt statement I mean that he O.K'd about 100% of New Deal opportunism, which found the votes were all in the direction of 'human rights vs property rights'.

Ingersoll

What this country needed in the greatest of all emergencies (a presidential campaign) was a candidate who could see that these two rights are inseparable, and not opposed—instead of a parallel G. O. P. confusion of the two, making the essence of Communism.

And now Schneiderman's deportation should be defeated under the plea of 'civil liberties'; but only if the accused will cease conection with a party that attacks property rights. But Mr. Willkie can make a proper job of this only if he analyzes property rights as being public as well as individual, and demands protection of both.

'Rugged Individualism' recognizes no rights other than individual, whereas about half of wealth and values are socially or collectively created. So, does collectivism demand that the social-values-half of all property be socialized, to produce a perfect balance between the individual and society? Oh, no! The Socialist or Communist is exactly as rugged as the individualist; and so demands so for society or the community. He would liquidate the individual.

So Willkie is to make his client cease advocating the overturn of our government in order to destroy the property and profit system, he must meet him half way and clean the hands of his government by compelling it to clear the title to 'public property' or social values (largely in land and natural resources). This title now vests in individuals, and it must be socialized or communized. This is the only way to properly defend Communists.

My business-banker friend says 'The trouble with this country is the way big rich heirs flaunt their wealth'. Yes, unless we want to go to paternalism, we must find another answer.

First, it would be more desirable for all hands if these innocent heirs were not so much inflicted with these vast fortunes. Yes, but you say curbing them would be paternalism. No, I would not curb them specifically. I would prescribe generally for the body politic, so overgrown fortunes would be discouraged; so it would be easier to get money legitimately, and harder to get it by smartness, in collecting what others earn.

There are few excessive fortunes not amassed largely by some form of unearned increment. If one income tax could be devised to collect all the incomes that are not earned, it would be a very good single tax, and would largely cure the trouble as you have described it.

Good THOUGHT

Good WORD — Good DEED

DECLARATION OF MAZDAZNAN

As an introductory step Mazdaznan offers the formula of "Assurance or Ahura's Prayer," which when uttered on the breath, assures oxygenation and purification of the blood, increased circulation and rhythmic heart action.

ASSURANCE, OR AHURA'S PRAYER

Our Father who art in Peace,
Intoned be Thy Name;
Thy realm arise;
Thy will incarnate upon the earth as in heaven.
This day impart Thy Word
And remember not our offenses
That we may forgive those who offend us.
Thru temptation guide us
And from error deliver us. Be it so.

Followed by the formula "Meditation", spoken on the breath, thoughtfully and meditatively as an exercise, three to five times a day, purification of the nerves follows and with it power of Mind over matter.

MEDITATION

Open, O thou world-sustaining Sun,
The entrance unto Truth, hidden by the vase of dazzling light.
Soften the radiation of thy illuminating splendors
That I may behold Thy true being.
From the unreal lead me on to the real
And unveil the magic illustions of the phenomenal worlds
That I may see the path unto realization. Amen.

Evil of War is Worst

"What distinguishes war is, not that man is slain but that he is crushed by the cruelty, the injustice, the treachery, the murderous hand of his fellows. The evil is moral evil. War is the concentration of all human crimes. Here is its distinguishing, accursed brand. Under its standard gather violence, malignity, rage, fraud, perfidy, rapacity and lust. If it only slew men it would do little. But it turns them rather into beasts of prey. Here is the evil of war, that man made to be the brother, becomes the deadly foe of his kind; that man, whose duty it is to mitigate suffering, makes the infliction of suffering his study and end; that man, whose office it is to avert and heal the wounds which come from Nature's powers, makes researches into Nature's laws and arms himself with their most frightful forces, that he may become the destroyer of his race!"

—William Ellery Channing.

"We must accept the discipline of democracy as well as its freedoms. And those disciplines must come from ourselves, they must be reflections of our own attitudes. Discipline from without flourishes when discipline from within grows weak."—Hary Woodburn Chase, educator.

Experience may be the best teacher, but curiosity has taught a lot of people what they know.

"Depend upon it, the lovers of freedom will be free."—Edmund Burke.

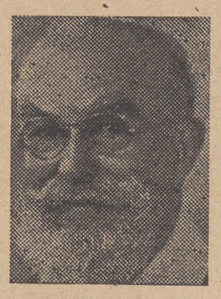
HEALTH-GERMS

By George Starr White, M. D.

EVERY ENERGY ACTS UPON ANOTHER ENERGY

The compass needle points north and south and is drawn into that direction by some unseen force—energy.

If the same needle be heated in a flame, it will not be acted upon by this unseen energy. WHY?



Dr. Geo. Starr White

If one be fitted with glasses while facing north or south, the "fit" will never be just the same while he faces east or west.

A person with hy blood pressure will sleep better if the head of the bed be directed east or west. On the other hand a person with low blood pressure will sleep better with the head of the bed directed north or south. U may say this is "imagination". It has been proved by thousands that it is NOT imagination.

Every living being must give off energy, or it would not be alive.

The magnetic-meridian is the force of energy that makes the magnetic needle turn north and south.

One energy must act upon another energy. That is an unchanging law of Nature.

All forms of energy, when understood, can be used to help or hinder natural life processes.

Remember the dog and his master's track—the dog can follow it, tho no scientist has ever been able to "prove by instruments" that the master's foot leaves its "something" that the dog can detect. Thru the dog we can PROVE that the foot does leave a "something". Instruments are crude when compared with Nature's finer forces.

Only a few years ago the telegraph and radio were ridiculed by "scientists".

No laboratory sistem can yet discover the energy given off from the brain when it "thinks". Thinking requires energy and consequently must produce energy, whether we can "test it", or "measure it", or not. A few crude attempts are now being made to "prove" there is an energy given off by the brain while thinking—but just what the energy is and where it comes from remain mysteries.

The therapeutic efficiency of any energy must be judged by clinical experience, or clinical findings, not by what this or that "laboratory scientist" may claim.

Magnet energy helps normalize the internal secretions, as I have demonstrated for many years.

Because it is popular among physicians to believ that properly directed magnetism has no beneficial effect upon humans, is no reason why we all should not try to get the facts of what is "unorthodox". All progress is made and ever has been made, by those who were at first called "irregular".

One cannot be "regular" and be progressive.

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

Rubber Trees Destroyed

NEW YORK,— Even some business men, who should be better informed, smugly believe that if Singapore is not captured all will be well with the rubber supply from Malayasia—a few shortages now, but later everything will be okay. New York financial interests warn such a hope is based on map blindness. Even if the fortress holds, its triumph is a military triumph which might not prevent an incredible economic disaster. Unless the Japs in their relentless march down the peninsula are stopped miles from the stronghold one of the world's chief sources of rubber is lost for at least seven years.

The British and Dutch are determined that the Nipponese shall not get the booty and already have begun to destroy their $400,000,000 investment. The territory north of Singapore contains about 40 percent of the world's rubber. Recent Japanese landings in Sumatra emphasize the fact that The Netherlands East Indies produce another 40 percent. If the trees are chopped this nation loses 97 percent of its crude rubber sources. Later we may get inner tubes and tires from guayule, a Mexican shrub, and from koksagyz, a plant of the dandelion family. Also there are 15,000,000 rubber seedlings planted in this hemisphere, which will mature sooner than any new trees that may be set out in the East Indies after the war.—Albert H. Leman.

Contempt for the Voters

Editor, The Broom:

The common people, having no political authority, but granted the privilege of choosing their political leadership by ballot, must necessarily feel themselves in an anomalous position, when, after electing their political leaders, they are regarded as utterly incompetent to judge as to the competency of such leadership.

Such attitude asssumes that the voter ceases to have any intelligence after casting his ballot. Thenceforward, no questions are permissible as to the God-given wisdom of the candidate who was elected.

In troubled times such as these, any difference of opinion as to the wisdom of certain political procedure is not acceptable, so the voter who hastened to the polls to help elect his candidate ponders over the meaning of the word democracy.

Finally, he begins to think something is wrong when he is given to understand in no unmistakable terms that any doubt as to the wisdom of politcal procedure borders on lack of patriotism. Propaganda steps in and a good man's reputation is ruthlessly made to pay the price of political intolerance.

'Objector' Paroled; To Serve Country Camp

WASHINGTON,—The immediate parole of Henry Welty Kuhns, of Redlands, improsoned Nov. 12 for two years for refusing to report for army induction, was ordered by Attorney Gen. Francis Biddle with approval of Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

Biddle said Kuhns is being transfered to a conscientious objectors' camp at San Dimas, Calif., from the federal correctional institution at Terminal island.

Kuhns refused to report for induction after his appeal for exemption as a conscientious objector was denied .

"My, what well developed arms you have."

"I play tennis," said the sweet young thing.

"Do you ride horseback too?"

Archbishop Trench once went to the assistance of a little girl who was trying to reach a rather high door knocker.

"Knock hard, yer riverence," pleaded the youngster. The Archbishop did so. "Now run like the divil," she added.

Akers Elicits Reply From Henderson

You folks read it in the BROOM last week. Our printer, Roy O. Akers, got mad like blazes when he read in the news and heard over the radio that our cars might be confiscated by Leon Henderson. He told me about it and said he would write a letter to that bird. I told him, "go ahead and write it, I'll publish it", which we did. Here it is again:

* * *

What Are We Fighting For ?

Leon Henderson,
Office of Priority Management,
Washington, D. C.

By your suggestion that private owned automobiles of we sovereign citizens be confiscated, and other Tom-foolery and un-constitutional ideas and acts of the present administration and so-called leaders and saviours of the American-way-of-life, under the guise of war necessity, it appears this war is to "enslave" the peoples of this great democratic republic of the United States of America—NOT TO SAVE IT!

ROY O. AKERS.

Henderson Replies

That letter was actually written on Saturday, January 3rd, when THE BROOM was printed. And on Jan. 9 the radio and the news columns carried this:

NO AUTO SEIZURES PLANNED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (A.P.)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson issued a formal statement today assuring the nation the government has no plans to commandeer private autos and explaining that fears of commandeering undoubtedly arose from his own answers to questions at a press conference Jan. 2.

At that time, Henderson said, commandeering of autos was "one of the gloomy possibilities" that a prolonged war might bring about.

Henderson said today the government "presently is well supplied with autos" and added there is no occasion for citizens to offer their cars for public use.

* * *

WHAT TO MAKE OF IT ?

When I look at the record of the promises of the NEW DEAL, that we would have lower taxes, more security, greater freedom and that again and again and again I tell you your boys will not be sent overseas, I just wonder what Mr. Henderson's promise implies. The record of the New Deal is clear and straight in this: Whatever they denied doing, that came to pass.

The scarcity idea born of the New Deal when they deliberately destroyed crops and things, that idea has now come back with greater force. Soon those of us who wondered how people lived in Russia, where they have to stand in line to be permitted to buy things we used to get without fuss or trouble,—we will find out how they live in Russia.

Russia is here, my dear !

We had two days in November dedicated to thanks. Maybe what this country needs even worse is a single day dedicated to thinks. A national holiday given to sober thought might do the nation a world of good.

There are two sides to every question, and some people are born to choose the silly one.

"THANK YOU—from all of us"

"Just before Christmas, we told you that we would appreciate your lending us a hand over the Holiday Season by not sending greetings by Long Distance.

"We asked this in order to help keep the lines available for calls important to defense.

"In spite of all our extra operators could do, there were many more calls than could be handled without delay. We are exceedingly sorry for the delay, but grateful for the friendly cooperation you gave us all through these busy days. Thank you. It really helped a lot.

Christ vs The Iron Rod

During the first world war Henry Ford expected to "get the soldier boys out of the trenches by Christmas".

Now we have the continuation of that same war with the boys battling in some parts of the world and the rest getting ready for the trenches, and here was Christmas.

And the question arises, at Christmas, with its message of Glory to God in the highest and Peace and Goodwill to men, on earth; why does "God permit" war to come? Could God not stop the carnage?

Some people have a funny idea of "God". A funny conception of "religion".

They look for God in the Book, as well as for religion. But God is the God of the living, the LIVING God and you will find Him only while living according to His commandments. Religion is that bond between the living God and him that lives according to his covenant with God. There is no other religion. Such things as denominations, sects and creeds, have nothing to do with religion. If people had religion they would have no denominations; the two don't go together. There can be no tolerance of this and that religion anymore than you may tolerate intelligence, honesty or health. Who wants to be tolerated anyway? Who is so superior to me that he condescends to tolerate me? In fact, the moment he takes that attitude, he becomes my nferior. Those who put up with me are in a poor fix. Tolerance of another man's views is all-right for those who are inclined to interfer with another man's life, because he thinks differently. Of course, tolerance in that case is better than swooping down on him because he thinks differently. But what an intolerable condition it creates between those who tolerate and himself, the merely tolerated. Someday its bound to break its bounds and the tolerated one is likely to hit them on the head with all he's got for the insult they silently heaped on him all those years.

The Law of Life

The universe, with us in it, is not operated by a dictator, called God. The universe is so constructed that we are to operate our own lives and get the results inevitably and with compound interest. That is the marvel of it, the ingenuity by which God obliterated HIMSELF from active participation so we have a free path to run our own lives and be certain of correct results as we decide and invest our energies. We always get back what we sow.

And that is why we have wars and God never interferes. Those who have no part in the making of wars are never involved, except when they chose to enter the theatre of war because they can test their own character during times of stress and unfold qualities of fortitude and circumspection that cannot be cultivated in any other place.

When war comes what is it that you do? That gives the clue to the NECESSITY of war as an educator of wayward humanity.

When war comes you promise to obey the commander-in-chief. And from one end of the country to the other all join in unity to sacrifice lives, give up personal privileges, buy war bonds and pledge your property to the interest gatherers, in payment of the war bonds. You are willing to pay high taxes.

Supose you had obeyed God and His commands, at the same risk and sacrifice, during peace times and pledged your life and wealth to the execution of His Will for Peace and Godwill among men on earth—just think of 100 billions, well utilized for works of love and progress—without stint, and this vice and that vice, as a sacrifice to the Commander-in-Chief, the Lord Almighty.

Do we have to tell you more?

War is hell. Because mankind does not devote its free energies to find and obey the WILL of God, they create conditions that forces them into iron discipline of militarism and of sacrifice with high taxes, or confiscation of property. Those who were so afraid of losing a dollar and sacrificed principle to the greed of expediency, now they will not only lose that dollar but might get a bomb on their heads to boot.

What you do with your free time and free energy counts and determines your future life. As a nation we were the freest people on earth. Today we are in iron discipline. Our boys are readying to give their lives in battle.

The same condition of the iron rod exists everywhere on earth. Those who tolerated the poor heathens and exploited them for commercial purposes and further took no interest in the benighted savages, find that the savages have learned very fast to imitate their "betters". The "backward" races have armed themselves with the tools of modern industries and warfare and are giving us a dose of our own medicine.

Wherever we look we see the LAW works. Today as always we have the choice between the iron rod and the Golden Rule, between being led by a child, the Christ, and being forced by the NECESSITY to defend our very existence and lives. He who voluntarily complies with the WILL, the highest intelligence of the Creator, does not ever have to take orders from another. He who refuses to obey God, has to obey his military superior, to get the discipline that will fit him for unquestionable obedience to orders. In that way humanity learns the hard way to comply with the ORDER of the Creator and slowly, but with unspeakable suffering, is man forced into the path of righteousness, when he could have had paradise on earth had he so chosen in the first instance and as dutifully complied with the RULE of God as he complies today with the rules laid down by the commender-in-chief in wartime.

No one is sending Bundles for America, but some of the scrap iron we sold Tokyo in the old, business-as-usual days will be coming back.

The War Quicksteps

One thing perhaps you've noticed. This war is geared to such a speed that comment upon it, prepared for no less than a journal published weekly, is well-nigh ancient history by the time the printers put such paper in the mails. Our White House spokesman took for granted apparently that America's joining Britain was to be one of those leisurely, ponderous, heroic gestures, befitting the prestige of the nations involved. Schedules would be sacred.

Ambassadorial relations were to be ended in a series of six-course dinners, editorial postmortems, and motion picture cameras filming the departures of notables from docks. Heads of governments were going to be considerate enough to dispatch missives to one another, the gist of which would be: "If it please your august highnessess, we hereby serve notice that month after next, at two in the afternoon, eastern standard time, it is our sovereign purpose to punch you in the eye."

Plenty of time was going to be allowed for all parties to eat lunch. Doubtless arrangements could be made to have some Hollywood cutie pull a cord that fired some gun that opened hostilities.

Thereafter the navy was to steam forth to meet the foe in a manner somewhat suggestive of Mayor La Guardia departing with his staff to inspect a German Bund camp at Andover, N. J.

Soldier boys were to assemble with a hurrah from office, factory and farm. Everybody in industry was to have his picture taken. Somewhere around the 5th of next July a couple of fancy battles were to be fought off the coast of Berne, Switzerland, after which Triumphal Arches were to be erected from the Bronx to Hester Street and the army-stores buyers would make so much money that it would need a special department of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to compute their annual tax.

The White House spokesman and his advisers, in other words, would seem to have created an impression that they envisioned the pursuance of hostilities in the sedate psychologies of 1917. No one has paid much attention to the fact that 1917 came and went, some twenty-five years ago come Michaelmas. And twenty-five years, everywhere but in a New Deal calendar or arithmetic, is a full quarter-century. In that quarter-century many things have happened.

In the first place, aviation has been perfected. We have likewise come to live in the day of the radio. Getting everything set with proper tempo to fight a war with the ships "battle" and "censor" and then having a lot of nasty Japanese hornet-planes and short-wave sets mess everything up, only goes to show—so we may infer—that the enemy whom we fight is composed of scoundrels, brigands, terrorists and heathen. The way to cope with such an enemy—from what the Spokesman has discussed to date—is to call on the smartest of the three hundred press agents and have a speech composed that calls him all those epithets. This burns him up.

Meantime, worse luck, a lot of other valuable things burn up. Among such items might be listed several prime sea-going battle-wagons, a couple of Pacific island defenses, a whole flock of army bombers whose pilots had parked them for a Turkish bath, and the tempers of a hundred and thirty million Americans who had been sold on the campaign oratory that promised them strict immunity from all of it.—Galilean Magazine.

No Figs From Thistles

As in the other world war, so in this, the goal is pictured in terms of a world made safe for democracy and the cherished freedoms, a world of peace, justice and good will. But war tramples democracy and freedom, denies justice, engenders hatred, and forestalls lasting peace. Can we expect to reap differently than we sow? "Do men gather figs from thistles?"

Desirable ends are not attained by undesirable means. Instead, as one philosopher has said, "The means lingers to infect the end". This is emphatically attested by the results of the other world war. History gives no warrant for believing that war advances the great ideals of democracy, freedom, good will, justice, and lasting peace.

Real progress toward these great humanitarian ideals is made only in times of peace. Instead of helping to establish these ideals, as war leaders tell us, war sets them back—so much so that many years of peace are required to regain the ground lost in times of war. —Nebraska Union Farmer.

Fear Not ! . . . God is here, there is none mightier.

Inglorious Wash-Up of New Dealism

The New Deal is in urgent need of sizable victory after sizable victory—brilliant, cumulative and irrefutable—to keep it from "losing face" itself before the sardonic scrutiny of the perturbed American people. Just now there are no such victories in sight—brilliant, cumulative, irrefutable. Our battle fleet may be assiduously hunting the Japanese in the Pacific, but according to Secretary Knox's own words, it is inadequate to its task, granted that it finds them.

Has the American tax-payer the right to ask "why" our Pacific fleet should be "inadequate" to its task, after the millions spent upon it? And why cannot our Pacific fleet "find" the Japanese with the same celerity with which it found the "enemy" in the recent Pacific maneuvers?

We people back in the hinterland are paying for this fleet. We have been paying for it over twenty years. Whose fault is it now, that it should prove "inadequate"?

Three-foot-long cigarette-holders and facetious wisecracks at press conferences, would appear to be of small moment with the Republic in peril and an enemy at our gates.

Somebody should, in all kindness, advise Mr. White House spokesman exactly how hard-headed Midwesterners regard the catastrophe that terminated the New Deal dynasty.

The Nipponese seem to be fighting this war with Messerschmitts—somebody, it seems, should so inform Secretary Knox. Clamping a ferocious censorship on news in from Manila or Hong Kong or Singapore doesn't rescue General MacArthur from his tragic isolation on the richest group of islands in the world.

As a matter of fact, go anywhere else besides Washington, D. C. and you make the discovery that the American people are surprisingly informed as to who must take the blame.

Secretary Knox took the job of being naval secretary. Did he ascend to control of an inadequate fleet knowingly, and in the face of it make fire-eating speeches that would threaten its existence if actual war resulted?

All of this postulates, of course, the early disappearance of so-called New Dealism. The nation is past that sort of nonsense now. With the declaration of a shooting-war the men at the heads of government vacated their party allocations and made themselves representative of the Republic as a whole. There can never be a return to the nincompooperies of 1933-1941.

As this war goes into reverse upon reverse, the men responsible for starting it, are going to get the odium. Inefficiency, politics, wastralism, patronage, profligacy, nepotism—these must encounter the mounting wrath of Gentiles. New-Dealism is DONE!

The Midwest is tired of that sort of thing. It wants to go back to the Faith of the Fathers.—Galilean Magazine.

U. S. to Buy 20 Million More of Russian Gold

WASHINGTON,—Secy. of Treasury Morgenthau has announced the United States will purchase an additional $20,000,000 worth of gold from Soviet Russia, bringing total U. S. purchases to aid battling Russia to $60,000,000.

He explained that the dollar assets made available by the transaction will be used by the Soviets to purchase goods and services in the United States in addition to materials they are receiving under the lend-lease program.

Hits Discharge of Foreign Born

WASHINGTON, — President Roosevelt denounced as "stupid" and "unjust" the increasing discharges of loyal efficient workers in American industries "simply because they were born abroad or because they have foreign sounding names.

"I am deeply concerned over the increasing number of reports of employers discharging workers who happen to be aliens or even foreign born citizens," the president said. "This is a very serious matter."
